

VOX VERE
FREE YOUR VOICE AND YOUR MIND WILL FOLLOW

Welcome to the Vocal Development Workshop – Reconnection!

Voice is direct expression of our personality. This workshop is based on the Melocchi technique used by opera singers in Italy (Del Monaco, Corelli, Giacomini, Martinucci, etc).

The aim is to activate the muscles that control the vocal chords by executing precise and simple vocal exercises. This technique is not only very useful for professional singers, but also for actors and all other public speakers because it prevents the voice from getting tired during and after the performance and keeps the vocal chords in optimal shape.

Vocal restrictions are directly reflected on our personality and therefore determine our life quality. Participants are reminded of how the natural voice sounds like without the influence of rational conditioning related to our programming known as education that begins with the first words spoken. We are experiencing this sound produced by our own vocal apparatus as personal authentic voice. When activated it dissolves psychosomatic blockages, brings subconscious mechanisms to the conscious surface and balances heart-mind connection. This process is often experienced as centering. Fundamental element of this method is the optimal breathing technique.

The VOX VERE Vocal Development Method is suitable for everybody regardless of age, experience or education.

After his studies at the Amsterdam Theater School Alan Razzak graduated in June 2005 at the Utrecht Conservatory in the class of Henny Y. Diemer. He continued vocal studies at the International Studio of Vocal Arts with tenor James McCray.

After years of performing and teaching in the Netherlands, Switzerland, Croatia and Germany Alan Razzak has developed a style which is very simple, efficient and applicable for students and professionals in theatre. After teaching in the Theatre School of Amsterdam he came to live in Berlin where he works as a voice teacher and guest teacher by LKJ Berlin – Youth Cultural Education, Wannsee Forum Education and as a singer and vocal therapist.
